

Sara Vecchiato, Udine University

CV Summary

I obtained a Degree in Foreign Languages at the University of Venice in 1998, in 1999 a Master in Linguistics, and in 2003 a PhD in French Linguistics at the University of Brescia. In 2000 I was awarded a teacher's diploma for secondary school as the result of a national competition by titles and exams: French Language and Literature (classes A245, A246) and English Language and Literature (classes A345, A346). In 2004 I held the position of Post-doc researcher at the University of Venice. From 2005 to 2015 I was a Lecturer at the University of Udine. In 2015 I was appointed Associate Professor of French Linguistics, always at the University of Udine.

I collaborate with the team "Modèles et algorithmes" of the Gaspard-Monge computer science research laboratory (LIGM) at Université Paris-Est.

I am a member of the Scientific Committee of the International Centre on Plurilingualism and collaborate with the European Universities Network on Multilingualism (EUNoM).

I am also a member of the Do.Ri.F. and the Centre for Women's Studies of the University of Turin, and I collaborate with the Canadian Culture Centre and the Centre on Friulan language and culture of the University of Udine. I am a member of the editorial board of the journal "Lingue antiche e moderne" and have collaborated with Italian and international journals as a scientific reviewer (Lingvisticae Investigationes, Quaderni Donne & Ricerca) and for their book review section (Studi francesi, Publif@rum, Ponts, Oltreoceano).

I edited several collective books, among which the proceedings of the yearly conferences of the Bocconi University Language Centre, and of the international conference I organized with Sonia Gerolimich Plurilingualism and the Labour Market. I contributed to the organization of several international conferences (Università di Udine 2002, 2007; Université Paris-Est/ Università dell'Aquila 2008) also as a member of the scientific committee (Université Paris Descartes 2010; Università di Torino 2011; Institut Français d'Athènes 2012, Université Paris IV Sorbonne 2015).

I participated in projects on microvariation in syntax (U.Venice 2004); synonymy (PRIN 2005-2007); multilingualism and pluricentric literatures (U. Udine 2009-2012); the discourse of mediation (U. Padua 2011-2014); multilingualism and enterprise (U. Udine 2012-2013); European Universities' network on Multilingualism (U. Oberta de Catalunya 2011-2014). With the LIGM, I have been contributing to a project aiming at the creation of a compared lexicon-grammar of romance languages. At the U. Udine I coordinate a research unit on plurilingualism and the labour market with focus on healthcare.

My research interests focus around :

- Lexis and Grammar Interface in French and Italian;
- Language of Health Care;
- Plurilingualism;
- Microvariation in French, with notable attention to Canadian French.

I am currently working on interrogative subordinate clauses and on the lexicon of healthcare. I am particularly focusing on the access to information by the user/patient, especially in a multilingual context.
